WHY I AM SUITED TO RESIDENT COMPANIONSHIP

I understand that companionship is about more than simply being present. It requires patience, respectful communication, active listening and genuine interest in the person being supported.

I would approach each resident as an individual, taking time to listen to their stories, interests and preferences while respecting their personal space and dignity. I am comfortable having conversations, participating in activities and encouraging residents to become involved in suitable social activities at their own pace.

I also understand that volunteers must work within their responsibilities. Where a resident raises a concern involving health, safety or wellbeing, I would communicate the concern promptly to the supervising nurse or assigned staff member rather than attempting to handle matters outside my role.

RELEVANT PERSONAL STRENGTHS

Communication & Active Listening

Comfortable having respectful conversations and listening carefully without interrupting. Able to communicate clearly with individuals and work collaboratively with staff.

Empathy & Respect

Approach people with dignity and respect regardless of age, background or ability. Understand the importance of making residents feel heard, valued and included.

Patience

Able to remain calm and attentive when a conversation or activity takes additional time. Willing to adapt my communication style according to the individual.

Reliability

Strong commitment to arriving on time, completing assigned responsibilities and communicating appropriately when assistance is required.

Teamwork

Comfortable working alongside supervisors, nurses, staff members and other volunteers while following instructions and contributing positively to the team.

Social Interaction

Enjoy engaging with people through conversation and shared activities. Willing to participate in board games, reading, music, arts, group discussions and other approved recreational activities.

RECREATIONAL ACTIVITIES I CAN SUPPORT

- Board games and simple group games
- Reading and shared reading sessions
- Music and music-based conversations
- Arts and creative activities
- Friendly one-on-one conversations
- Group social activities
- Storytelling and life-experience conversations
- Simple indoor recreational activities
- Encouraging residents to participate in suitable activities
- Supporting positive interaction between residents

SAFETY, PRIVACY & RESPONSIBILITY

I understand that working with elderly residents requires a high level of responsibility. I am prepared to:

- Follow all SwiftCare resident-care instructions.
- Follow health and safety procedures provided by supervising staff.
- Respect resident privacy and confidentiality.
- Maintain appropriate professional boundaries.
- Avoid performing tasks outside my volunteer responsibilities.
- Report concerns to the supervising nurse or assigned staff member.
- Treat residents with dignity, patience and respect.
- Follow instructions regarding approved activities.
- Communicate clearly when I am unsure about a situation.
- Maintain reliable attendance throughout my agreed volunteering schedule.
